UNESCO NATURAL HERITAGE - DISCOVER THE UNIQUE WORLD OF THE AEOLIAN ISLANDS

Aeolian Islands:

The volcanic islands of the Tyrrhenian Sea off the north coast of Sicily are characterized by wild, unspoilt nature. They are called the "Aeolian Islands" because, according to Greek legend, the god of the wind, Aeolus, once lived here. The jewel in the Mediterranean has seven inhabited islands, and each one is different. From lovely green hills to seething craters, you will find a wide variety of unique natural landscapes in a very small space. In 2000 the archipelago of the Aeolian Islands was declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Regular volcanic eruptions of the Stromboli offer a true natural spectacle, and the volcanic mountains and Mediterranean landscapes are a true hiking paradise.

The daily program:

Depending on the wind, weather and season, we plan the perfect daily routine!

The shore excursions are made individually or in small groups.

We are happy to take into account the wishes of our fellow sailors.

What to Explore

Lipari:

Although Lipari with its approximately 5000 inhabitants only has the population of a larger village, you will find yourself in a typical Sicilian small town. Lipari has one of the most beautiful archaeological museums in Italy and a picturesque old town with many small shops that invite to stroll. Obsidian and pumice stone can be found around Monte Pilato. It is worth taking a detour on the Vespa, and offers many hiking opportunities for different demands.

Salina:

While the other six islands are administered centrally from Lipari, Salina has three mayors for approximately 2300 inhabitants. Salina is also known as "the green island" because in the 1970s the focus here was not only on tourism, but also on rebuilding agriculture as a second mainstay. There are numerous vineyards, the dessert wine "Malvasia delle Lipari" and, of course, the capers, which are considered to be the best in the world, come from here. Organic farmer Fenech tells us about growing capers and wine. Trekkers can hike to the highest peak of the archipelago, the 962m high Monte Fossa delle Felci, with its beautiful pine and chestnut forest.

Panarea:

Panarea, the smallest island in the archipelago, is known as the island of the rich and beautiful. While walking through the narrow streets, the visitor can get an idea of how well-kept the island is. In Roman antiquity, the islands of Panarea, especially Basiluzzo, were a refuge for high society, as proven by the ruins of a large Roman villa on the now uninhabited island. A hike with the beautiful panorama of all the islands and a visit to the Bronze Age village on Capo Milazzese leaves nothing to be desired.

Volcano:

The smell of sulfur greets visitors as soon as they dock: until the end of the 19th century, sulfur and alum were mined under inhuman conditions only a few meters from the quay. Today, souvenir shops, spas, hotels and bars are springing up here, and those who want can wallow in the warm sulfur mud. The highlight is certainly the two-hour crater hike through yellow sulfur fumaroles.

Stromboli:

Since ancient times, the volcano has been an orientation point for seafarers at night - the Stromboli erupts about every 15 to 20 minutes. Depending on the magma level in the chimney, the lava fountains are thrown several hundred meters above the crater rim. Stromboli is the best location in Europe to see a Volcano close up. We recommend hiking with the guides from Magmatrek, who organize the ascent in groups - the only way to climb the crater rim. Hiking above 400m is prohibited without a licensed guide. You can also comfortably enjoy the volcanic eruptions at 200m from the Pizzeria Observatorio with a glass of wine and good pizza.
